Application for a Bruker Travel Bursary to attend mmc2019 Conference and Exhibition

We have been very fortunate in securing additional funding, which means we can offer five travel bursaries to attend the mmc2019 Conference and Exhibition. Awards will be made on a first come first served basis. They are restricted to PhD students contributing to the SPM Advancing Materials Science via Scanning Probes session by means of a talk or poster presentation.

Five travel bursaries of £100 each are available.

The following points should be noted when applying for a Bruker Travel Bursary:

- Bursary applications will not be considered until your abstract has been accepted into this session.
- After the conference bursary recipients will prepare a short report which may be published in infocus.
- Payment will be made after the event, on completing an RMS Expense Form and producing the relevant receipts and report, the deadline for this being 30 September 2019
